My name is Marvin, and I'm a smelly ten-year old bulldog. I am white and tan with a stumpy rump. I love nothing better than trying to get treats out of my mum or the children by rubbing against their legs or looking at my mum with those famous puppy dog eyes because in my head I still am one. I also love a good chin scratch, but not many will do this because I have smelly breath, but watch out because my bum burps are worse. I love lying in my bed and staring at my reflection in the window.

I'm getting on a bit now and lately I've had to go see that horrible person who sticks something up my bum and tells me if I'm too hot or too cold. In my eyes I'm always hot coz I'm the god darn best-looking dog in my house. The vet said I've got dementia but I can't remember what it is. They also gave me a shot and some medication to take at home because whenever my mum leaves the room I bark and bark, no matter how much it hurts my throat, until she returns. This medication makes me sleepy and I have been known to fall asleep stood up. Good job only got short legs otherwise the floor would be a long way down.

I'm a bit of a snob in the dogs of the estate world because I've got a designer collar and lead. Mummy went on her holidays with grandad and uncle Ashie and auntie Jo Jo and brought me a Louis Vuitton collar- and- lead set that matches not only each other but her handbag too!

I like to eat everything I can get my paws on, but my hoomans won't let me. It's only because they don't want me to get fat and even more lazy. Anyway I'm off outdoors for a sniff around and to go the loo before I have a nap as I'm sleepy.
